Description

Two "T. Silvana Comfort" armchairs, produced in the 1950s by Carlo Ratti's Industria Legni Curvati in Lissone, are a prime example of Italian design from that period. The metal frame, made of black-painted square tubes, offers sturdiness and an understated style, while the seat and backrest in bent plywood add a touch of elegance and comfort. A recent restoration has restored these armchairs to their original beauty, preserving the authenticity of their 1950s design. Ideal for spaces that call for sophistication and history, these chairs are perfect for those who appreciate the blend of form and function. MOSESE0321454
