

PROANTIC
LE PLUS BEAU CATALOGUE D'ANTIQUITES

Japanese Maki-e Lacquer Panel Depicting Mount Fuji, Early 20th Century

170 EUR

Period : 20th century

Condition : Prévoir restauration

Material : Painted wood

Width : 17

Height : 17

Description

An elegant Japanese decorative panel, created in the early decades of the 20th century, likely taken from the lid of a box or a small piece of furniture and later mounted in a modern frame. The scene depicts an evocative landscape with Mount Fuji in the background, two dignitaries being carried in a rickshaw, and an attendant in the foreground. The background, in dark red lacquer with delicate, barely perceptible floral motifs, is embellished with elegant maki-e decorations using gold powder. The figures' faces are rendered with small bone inlays, using a decorative technique typical of Japanese craftsmanship from the late Meiji and early Taisho periods. The panel measures 17 × 17 cm and is presented in a modern gilded wooden frame measuring 42 × 42 cm, which enhances its

Dealer

Antichità Palladio

Antiquités

Mobile : +393483229040

Viale sant'Agostino 533

Vicenza 36100

display. Date: early 20th century (circa 1900-1925). Condition: The panel has a significant crack in the wooden backing, resulting in the lacquer lifting along the crack line, as well as normal wear and minor losses due to age and use. The condition is clearly visible in the photographs. For additional photographs or information, please do not hesitate to contact us. Shipping available worldwide.