Description

Set of three crystal, silver, and ivory perfume bottles. Dated from the first half of the 20th century. An elegant set of three perfume bottles of decreasing sizes, crafted from cut crystal and adorned with silver mounts and natural ivory stoppers. Each bottle features a simple and refined silhouette--a slightly flared square shape--enlivened by a delicate pattern of twisted panels that beautifully catches the light. The purity of the crystal, combined with the finesse of the cut, lends this set a timeless elegance. The perfectly fitted silver mounts are topped with turned ivory stoppers featuring a beautiful patina, each inlaid with a silver monogram bearing the initials "LD," indicating a custom order intended for a prestigious residence or an elegant toiletries set. These bottles perfectly exemplify the refinement of tableware and toiletries from the first half of the 20th century, a time when leading crystal makers and silversmiths crafted objects that were as luxurious as they were functional. Their sleek design, inspired by the Art Deco movement, fits just as well today into a collection as it does into a contemporary interior. The quality of their craftsmanship, the harmonious combination of crystal, silver, and ivory, and the presence of their original monogram make this a particularly attractive set that is rare on the market. A beautiful set of toiletries bottles, ideal for complementing a dressing table set, a collection of decorative art objects, or simply adding a touch of elegance to an interior.
