Description

A rare bronze cast dating from the late 19th century, set on an oval pedestal with naturalistic decoration simulating a grassy, earthen surface in relief and bordered by a moldings integrated into the cast; this bronze depicts a thoroughbred racehorse at rest, all four hooves resting on the ground and its head turned slightly to the right, equipped with a full set of tack (bridle, bit, saddle with stirrups and girth). It is ridden by a jockey seated in the saddle and dressed in traditional racing attire (a cap with a visor, a buttoned jacket, riding breeches, and boots), holding the reins and a riding crop in his right hand. The front of the base features a cartouche engraved with the inscription "Retour au Pesage," while the right side of the pedestal bears the engraved signature "J. Moignez" (Jules Moignez, 1835-1894).
