Description

This cup is a high-quality piece from the late 19th century, inspired by Louis XV designs. The hand-painted floral decoration is dominated in the center by a large bouquet of blue tulips, in the style of 18th-century Meissen pieces. This lovely multi-lobed design features ribbed borders along the upper rim and at the lower section above the feet. The openwork handles on either side are reminiscent of 18th-century Louis XV-style serving dishes. The rim is adorned with a brown-and-gold rocaille frieze that subtly highlights the piece's dynamic contours. The gilding is in very good condition with minimal signs of wear. A few small firing marks consistent with late 19th-century production. Polychrome floral "semis" decoration on the interior and exterior. This piece of porcelain can
