Description

Empire-style console table in mahogany and gilded bronze, early 19th century
Elegant Empire-style console table in mahogany and mahogany veneer, featuring a drawer at the front. It rests on two freestanding columns joined by a crossbar and is topped with a gray marble tabletop. The front is adorned with a large, finely chiseled gilt-bronze appliqué depicting Ceres on her chariot, flanked by putti and a winged lion. The connecting blocks are adorned with antique figures in gilded bronze, while the bands around the columns emphasize the architectural elegance of the piece. The quality of the mahogany veneer, the finesse of the bronze chiseling, and the harmonious proportions attest to the fine craftsmanship characteristic of French workshops during the Empire period. Period: First Empire,
