Description

Art Nouveau First Communion Plaque in Veined Green Onyx & Bronze, Early 20th Century
The beauty of Art Nouveau, with its organic, nature-inspired curves, has shaped this First Communion plaque dating from the early 20th century. A true masterpiece of folk and religious art, this freestanding plaque features a bronze base and back, a beveled panel of veined green onyx, and a bas-relief depicting Jesus blessing a believer surrounded by angels. The craftsmanship of this religious object is spectacular, and it remains a beautiful addition to a collection of religious artifacts or a thoughtful gift for a Catholic believer. Engraved on the plaque is the Latin phrase "hoc est corpus meum - hic est sanguis meus," followed on the back by the initials of its former owner and the date of his
