Description

An elegant Louis XVI-period wicker-style sofa in molded and finely carved walnut. The curved, enveloping backrest is topped with a delicate carved bow, while the scroll-style armrests rest on curved consoles. The ornate waistband is punctuated by carved connecting blocks and rests on eight tapered, fluted legs, characteristic of the Louis XVI period. The piece displays beautiful proportions and high-quality craftsmanship, reflecting the refinement of late 18th-century French furniture. The sofa is in its original condition, with a beautiful original patina. The structure is perfectly sound and solid. The original upholstery is still in place, but the fabric shows signs of wear consistent with its age; the future owner may, if desired, have the upholstery restored to suit their interior while preserving this beautiful period frame. An authentic Louis XVI-era piece, elegant and decorative, offering excellent potential to be showcased after the upholstery is restored. Period: Louis XVI, circa 1775-1790. Origin: France. Material: carved walnut. Condition: in its original state, solid structure; original upholstery and fabric show signs of normal wear. Minor maintenance restorations may be performed over time without altering the character of this beautiful 18th-century chair.
