Description

A beautifully aged French oak wall-mounted salt box dating to the mid-19th century. Handcrafted in solid oak, this rustic piece embodies the simplicity and utility of rural French craftsmanship. The slanted lid, arched backplate with hanging aperture, and mortise-and-tenon joints reveal its authentic construction, while the rich, time-worn patina adds warmth and character.

Originally used in farmhouse kitchens to store salt, a precious commodity, this box now serves as a decorative accent for country, wabi-sabi, or minimalist interiors. Its natural surface wear and honest materials evoke the tactile beauty of everyday 19th-century domestic life.
