Description

Set of 30 EYE PROSTHESES, also known as GLASS EYES European work Circa 1900 Glass, resin and pigments H: 2; W: 2.5 cm approx. Each glass eye is unique and takes the form of a hemisphere or half-shell cut from milky-white glass or resin, centred on a painted iris and sometimes embellished with a few blood vessels to enhance the trompe-l'oeil effect. These ocular prostheses, made to measure by an ocularist for a specific patient, were fitted in place of the eyeball - the eye having been wholly or partially removed.
