Description

Oil on panel. A stunning, luminous view of Bastia by the Provençal painter Louis Vignon. There, he sought out the maritime atmosphere, the colorful facades, and the dazzling light of the South. Louis Vignon is an artist often classified as one of the "Provençal painters" or part of the School of the South. Louis Vignon is a painter who focused on texture. He very often worked "with a palette knife" to give depth to his canvases, sculpt the architecture of the ports, and capture the sun's reflections on the sea. He is particularly sought after for his views of the small coastal ports (Cassis, Saint-Tropez) and the villages of Haute-Provence and Corsica. An authentic painting that beautifully captures the soul and dazzling light of the "Island of Beauty."
