Description

A beautiful garden in full bloom, featuring irises, painted in a Post-Impressionist style and dated 1900. A well-composed painting: the foreground features a shaded path, the middle ground features flowers, and the background features a fence and a building; taken together, the composition gives us a real sense of space and depth. Jean Beauduin, born in 1851 in Verviers (Belgium) and died in 1916 in Paris, was a Belgian painter. WIKIPEDIA:
https://fr.wikipedia.org/wiki/Jean_Beauduin Oil on canvas in good condition, original canvas 46x55 cm, with tiny holes around the edge of the canvas, likely from a former frame attached directly to the painting; modern frame 52x61 cm
