Description

This magnificent antique 18-karat gold brooch elegantly embodies the refined spirit of the Art Nouveau era, a period when art and nature blended to create unique pieces. Dating from the transition between the late Victorian era and the Belle Époque, this piece combines the delicacy of floral motifs with the sophistication of curved lines, characteristic of these opulent eras. At the heart of the design, a small ruby sparkles, surrounded by openwork of remarkable finesse that allows light to filter through and highlights the gemstone. On either side, discreet yet elegant cultured pearls add a touch of softness and luminosity, enhancing the piece's precious character. The brooch is also distinguished by a swinging lower section, also adorned with a pearl, adding a dynamic and graceful dimension to the
