Description

This Tank ring from the 1940s is an exceptional piece, a testament to timeless jewelry craftsmanship. Crafted from solid 18-karat yellow gold, it embodies the elegance and refinement of the creations from this golden age of French jewelry. At the heart of this ring lies a central rose quartz stone, with a soft, mineral-like quality and a delicate hue, which captures the light with a subtle iridescence. Its faceted rectangular shape highlights the stone's transparency and nuanced reflections, while the gold setting underscores its precious nature. Size 56, this ring fits a woman's hand with grace. Its gross weight of 4.4 grams attests to its sturdiness while remaining light enough to wear comfortably every day. It is in remarkable condition: the gold retains its golden luster, and the stone, securely set, shows no major
