Description

A beautiful "three-color" goblet featuring a design of sailboats silhouetted against the light over the Bay of Venice by Daum. This goblet, which is entirely and richly etched, is a particularly striking piece with well-balanced colors. No fewer than seven sailboats are visible against the light in the foreground, while a city with numerous domes can be glimpsed in the background--most likely Venice. Note the beautiful balance of these three colors; there is often too much green or yellow on this type of piece, but here, the piece is well-balanced and the result is superb. 16 cm high, 18 cm wide, signed on the design, in perfect condition, circa 1910. A lovely piece with vibrant colors and a design that really stands out--very poetic.
