Description

An original and elegant caricature depicting a police officer reprimanding two young newspaper vendors. Created by Juan SINTES. After living in Paris, this famous Spanish illustrator settled in Egypt in the early 1900s, primarily to teach drawing. Specializing in political and social caricature, he worked for AL-Kashkoul and L'Égypte nouvelle, where he created satirical portraits as well as depictions of political figures. In this caricature, we see two young children, newspapers under their arms, being apprehended by a public official. The scene is depicted in a humorous manner, which was avant-garde for the time. The colors are vivid and bright; the work is signed in the lower left corner and presented in a recent, high-quality frame. An original piece in excellent condition.
