Description

A six-panel screen depicting a delicate landscape of the hama (coastal shoreline), rendered in sumi-e ink on a gold-leaf background. The landscape unfolds in a balanced composition featuring bodies of water, villages with traditional dwellings, pine forests, boats, and small figures engaged in daily activities. In the background, gentle hills fade into the mist. Burgundy lacquer frame. Artist's seal in the lower left corner.
Period: 18th-century Edo period. Dimensions: 83 x 266 cm. Condition: The folding screen is in good condition. Slight signs of wear on the gold leaf and on the silk and lacquer frame.
