Description

An elegant and richly decorated Art Nouveau vase depicting the Four Seasons, dating from the early 20th century and in excellent condition. The decoration revolves around the classic allegorical theme of Spring, Summer, Fall, and Winter--a subject particularly in keeping with Art Nouveau's fascination with nature, femininity, flowers, and the cycles of life. Each season is represented by a specific decorative vocabulary, creating a harmonious composition around the vase. The fluid forms and organic ornamentation are characteristic of the Art Nouveau aesthetic, in which the natural world was a major source of artistic inspiration. Standing 40 cm tall, this vase--with its imposing proportions and elegant sculptural presence--can be displayed both as a functional vessel and as a decorative work of art.
