1 750 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Solid wood

Description

An impressive and authentic 19th-century carpenter's workbench, crafted from solid wood. It retains the magnificent finish and character acquired through generations of use in the workshop. Originally designed as a functional workbench for a craftsman, this piece features a sturdy and solid construction typical of traditional 19th-century cabinetmaking furniture. Its elongated and narrow proportions, along with its solid wood structure, attest to its original function as a professional workspace for a carpenter or cabinetmaker. The beautifully preserved patina is particularly appealing. Marks, scratches, indentations, variations in color, and other traces of historical use remain visible in the wood, creating a unique surface that cannot be artificially reproduced. Far from detracting from
