Description

An Italian majolica plate from Montelupo, dating to the first half of the 17th century (circa 1620-1640). Slightly concave in shape with a rounded rim and a ring foot, it features rich polychrome decoration typical of Montelupo ware, one of the most important Italian ceramic centers between the Renaissance and the early 17th century. The decoration, entirely hand-painted, centers on a figure of a halberdier in motion, set within a stylized landscape featuring architectural and botanical elements. The lively, narrative composition showcases remarkable painterly quality and a taste for figurative scenes particularly prized by collectors. The color palette, dominated by intense yellows, greens, and manganese blues, is typical of these pieces and lends the work a strong
