

Cockfighting In Slurry, Based On Massier

3 800 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Parfait état

Material : Ceramic

Height : 75

Depth : 47

Description

Cockfighting in slip, after Massier. Jérôme and Delphine Massier, a famous dynasty of ceramicists, who had their workshops in Vallauris, in the south of France. Their depictions of colorful farmyard roosters are among the most famous and sought-after pieces in the heritage of French earthenware. The absence of a signature on this pair of roosters is not surprising and is quite understandable for ceramics from that period, which spans approximately 1880 to 1910.

Dealer

Des pulls dans ma commode

Antiquités

Mobile : 0612563273

43 rue damiette

Rouen 76000