Description

Pair of portraits of children Emilian School, first half of the 18th century
Dimensions with frame: 48 × 55 cm
Canvas dimensions: 38 × 45 cm
A refined pair of portraits of children belonging to the 18th-century Emilian painting tradition. The two paintings, executed in oil on canvas mounted on wood, depict the young subjects with great naturalness, capturing their gaze, their expressions, and the sweetness typical of childhood. The painterly quality is evident in the soft rendering of the skin tones, the depiction of the hair, and the careful detailing of the clothing. The compositional balance and the understated elegance of the poses evoke the finest Emilian tradition, which has always been dedicated to the pursuit of truth and the expressive intensity of portraiture. One of the two paintings retains its
