Description

Pair of Mid-Century Modern "LP253" wall sconces designed by Carlo Nason for Mazzega, a true expression of Italian design from the 1960s and 1970s. Crafted from refined, shaped transparent Murano glass and white lacquered metal, they stand out for their geometric lines and elegant interplay of transparencies that enhance the light, creating evocative lighting effects. The LP253 model perfectly embodies Carlo Nason's formal vision, blending innovation, minimalism, and the masterful craftsmanship of Murano. Their striking presence makes them ideal for both modern spaces and eclectic settings, where they become true design statements. An iconic pair of wall sconces from 20th-century Italian design, sought after by collectors and enthusiasts of designer lighting, perfect for enhancing any space
