Description

A refined example of Jugendstil metalwork, this three-arm candelabrum by WMF (Württembergische Metallwarenfabrik) captures the lyrical elegance of early Art Nouveau design. Crafted in Britannia metal with silver plating, the piece features an architectural frame with openwork foliate motifs, riveted detailing, and brass candle sockets that add a warm contrast to the cool silvered surface.

The composition balances geometric precision with organic flow, a hallmark of the Secessionist aesthetic, while the gently oxidized patina enhances its sculptural presence. The underside bears the model number 653/B, confirming its authenticity within WMF's early 20th-century catalogue.
