Antique oil painting on canvas depicting the Madonna and Child, characterized by a popular and archaic iconographic setting, attributable to a provincial or folk art context (perhaps Italian or central-southern/colonial area) between the 17th and 18th centuries. The painting depicts the Virgin crowned with a dark cloak and a green/blue border, embracing the Baby Jesus, who tenderly touches her chin in a gesture of affection typical of certain derivations of the Salus Populi Romani or devotional icons. Condition: The painting has been relined
