Description

An elegant polychrome porcelain sculpture depicting Harlequin wearing a mask, a famous character from the Italian Commedia dell'arte, produced by the prestigious German Meissen porcelain manufactory during the 20th century. The piece is based on the historic and iconic original 18th-century model designed by the renowned master modeler Johann Joachim Kändler, an undisputed master at capturing the dynamism and expressiveness of theatrical masks. The base features the famous crossed swords in Meissen's blue underglaze, accompanied by the engraved model numbers. Excellent overall condition. The porcelain retains the brilliance of its glazes and gilding. There are no chips or visible restorations. Condition as shown in the photos. I'm
