Description

Empire-style writing desk made of Cuban mahogany burl. The drop-down tabletop features a mercury mirror on the underside and reveals storage compartments, a silver-plated candlestick, and a green velvet pin cushion, both of which are removable. Front drawer opens to reveal a writing compartment lined with green leather and a gilded frieze with small ironwork details; on the side are compartments for inkwells and pen holders. Rests on column-shaped legs adorned with engraved gilded bronze rings. H-shaped crossbar. High-quality work from the Empire period. Very good condition, fully restored by our workshop, with a buffed varnish finish.
