Description

Large portrait of a lady of high social standing, in pastel on canvas, signed on the left side "Arsène Paris," circa 1840-1850. An elegant three-quarter-length portrait depicting a young woman of the upper middle class, seated in front of a balustrade overlooking a vast mountainous landscape. The subject, with a serene expression and direct gaze, is dressed in a black silk gown in the style of the 1840s-1850s, accented by a remarkable collar and finely crafted white lace cuffs. A discreet earring and a carefully arranged hairstyle--parted down the middle and styled into large side buns--complete this elegant portrait. Louis Charles Arsène, or Arsenne, was a painter born in Paris in 1780 and who died in 1855; he was a portrait painter as well as the author of a painting manual. The frame is
