Description

Rare bronze print with brown patina , featuring a seated dog , in an attentive posture , observing a turtle delicately placed in front of its paws , capturing a moment of fragile, contemplative curiosity , by animal sculptor Henri Alfred Jacquemart (1824-1894).The sculpture captures a moment of interaction between the two animals , revealing the natural dynamic between species .The choice of a dog , traditionally associated with loyalty , facing a tortoise , a symbol of wisdom and longevity , evokes a dialogue about curiosity and time .Alfred Jacquemart is distinguished by his ability to breathe palpable life and emotion into his sculptures .The meticulous details of the turtle's expressions , coat and shell , reinforce this impression of realism , while highlighting the artist's virtuosity .Through
