Description

19th-century nightlight (Louis XVI style and Napoleon III period), executed with great finesse. This lamp features a figure made of white bisque porcelain, depicting a young man/street vendor holding a small lantern. The rendering of the drapery, the face, and the details is exceptionally delicate. An incised mark is present at the base (double loop / interlaced love knots, characteristic of the fine porcelain manufactories of Paris or Sèvres). Brass and gilded bronze structure: A finely chiseled frame decorated with foliage motifs, volutes, and garlands of leaves. The top takes the form of a dome richly adorned with pendants, pearls, and flowers made of cut crystal or glass (with a few missing pieces). Rectangular base in veined gray-blue marble, encircled by a frieze of bronze pearls and
