Description

Paris and the Sacré-Coeur as seen from Porte Clignancourt before it was partially occupied by the flea market, by Raymond Besse. The painting is signed in the lower right corner, titled and countersigned on the back, and mounted in a 20th-century black-and-gold molded wooden frame. Without the frame, the painting measures 46x61 cm. Born in Niort in 1899, he began exhibiting views of Paris and its inner suburbs at the Salon des Indépendants in 1924, following in the footsteps of Maurice Utrillo.
