Description

A magnificent Venetian mirror from the Louis XIV period, crafted in the second half of the 17th century from finely carved and gilded wood. The imposing frame features an opulent decorative scheme composed of volutes, acanthus leaves, floral motifs, and openwork, culminating in an elegant architectural pediment with a canopy and carved pendants. On either side stand two eagles with outspread wings, symbols of strength and prestige, while the entire composition fully embodies the dramatic flair of Venetian Baroque. The mirror retains its original mercury-coated glass, with natural oxidation and characteristic patina that attest to its authenticity and the charm of a bygone era. A work of exceptional craftsmanship and striking visual impact, ideal for historic interiors, prestigious
