Description

An elegant 19th-century crystal chandelier, featuring a refined gilded metal frame and richly decorated with cut-glass pendants and garlands. The central body, arranged on multiple levels, features prisms, teardrops, and spears that enhance the diffusion of light and lend the piece a regal air. The chandelier consists of six arms topped with glass discs and lamp holders from a more recent period. The upper cascade of crystals and the original pendants attest to the artisanal quality typical of Italian and French craftsmanship in the mid-19th century. Currently equipped with modern wiring, it requires mounting and any necessary electrical inspections prior to installation.
