Description

Bronze sculpture depicting a panther in motion on an Art Deco-style marble base by the Belgian artist and sculptor Alexandre Ouline (1887-1965). Ouline is renowned for his sculptures in bronze, marble, and terracotta, characterized by great technical mastery and a distinctly modern style. He skillfully combined classical influences with an exploration of more contemporary forms, creating works of great expressiveness and evident refinement. His specialty lies in depictions of human and animal figures, which he manages to capture with a strong emotional dimension. His sculptures are distinguished by their balance between technical precision and fluid lines, which makes them timeless and highly sought-after in the art market.
