A superb pair of Louis XVI-period chairs, made of molded and carved mahogany, attributed to Georges Jacob and formerly from the Château de Villiers-le-Bâcle, from the collection of Count Paul Biver. The rectangular, openwork backs are framed by tapered, fluted posts. The central panel features a carved motif depicting a quiver with five arrows surrounded by two bows, held in place by a knotted ribbon with two tassels. The tapered, serrated, and fluted legs are connected to the base by blocks adorned with carved rosettes. The seats are upholstered with petit point tapestry featuring a floral motif, edged with studded braid.
