Description

Description Signed mid-century pastel and watercolour depicting a seated female nude, executed with an expressive yet sensitive handling of line and colour. The artist employs loose pastel strokes and delicate watercolour washes to create a contemplative portrait, balancing softly modelled flesh tones against an atmospheric palette of pale greens, muted blues and warm earth hues. The composition possesses an understated intimacy, with the sitter's lowered gaze and relaxed pose lending the work a quiet sense of reflection. Confident draughtsmanship and restrained colour harmonies place the piece within the tradition of European mid-century figurative art, where immediacy of observation takes precedence over fine detail. Elegantly presented in its original period frame with a wide
