Description

Roman terracotta oil lamp with a beautiful dark brown patina, featuring particularly interesting relief molding. The central disc is adorned with a cruciform motif surrounded by a relief design. The reverse side also bears a medallion with a cross, a feature found on certain lamps from Late Antiquity. The lamp retains its spout as well as its filling hole. In good condition, with wear and small chips consistent with its age. This piece will appeal to collectors of archaeology, Roman artifacts, and early Christian art. Dimensions: Length: 10 cm; Maximum width: 6 cm. Condition: Good condition. Antique patina. Signs of use and burial consistent with an ancient object. Proposed dating: Roman Empire, Late Antiquity, probably 3rd-4th century AD. For any questions, call +33778337598
