Description

A park where children are playing, watched over by their mothers. Watercolor painted by Hermine David, a French artist born in 1886 and who died in 1970. In 1907, she met Jules Pascin, who became her mentor and whom she would later marry. They painted together, often choosing similar subjects, frequently nudes. They were part of the École de Paris. Watercolor under glass, signed lower left. With frame: 48x38. // View: 41x31
