Description

Generously sized and well-preserved, this lovely polychrome carved linden wood head of Christ, with its highly expressive sulfur-colored eyes from the mid-18th century, exudes a powerful presence. Created during the reign of Louis XV, with its elegant and meticulous carving, it presents a figure of singular beauty with long hair and a full beard. With its soft-toned paintwork, delicate brushwork, and size (height 20.5 cm), this beautiful piece is worthy of a "Cabinet of Curiosities," where its spiritual presence will make quite an impression; the enigmatic face invites contemplation and is conducive to meditation--a way to soothe the mind. This beautiful piece is free of damage, in its original condition, and offers great decorative potential.
