Description

A rare and moving carved marble bas-relief depicting the Descent from the Cross, a Renaissance work dating from the 16th century. This composition, executed with remarkable skillThe artist has succeeded in infusing the scene with great dramatic intensity through a particularly vivid composition. The figures intertwine with great precision, their postures conveying all the pain and compassion that accompany Christ's descent from the Cross. The finely modeled faces reveal a profound humanity, while the treatment of the hands, arms, and drapery attests to remarkable technical mastery. The volumes, the interplay of folds, and the delicacy of the expressions lend the work as a whole an exceptional presence.The reverse side, left unfinished with traces of the sculptor's tools,
