Description

CHARLES X-era dressing table in rosewood veneer with lemonwood marquetry inlays. This dressing table features a vanity unit with a pivoting mirror surrounded by a swan-neck frame adorned with a delicate garland of foliage. A waist-level drawer embellished with marquetry depicting fillets, foliage, and scrolls, featuring a light-colored wooden writing surface covered in blue leather and storage compartments. The top is topped with a white marble slab. The entire piece rests on imposing legs; a volute-style console revealing a concave base, also adorned with lemon tree inlays and palmettes. Comes with casters and its key. Oval mirror only: 47 x 61
