Description

This charming pair of original oil on board paintings, both signed by an as yet unidentified artist, capture two contrasting scenes through a confident Impressionist style. The larger unframed work depicts a lively beach gathering beneath colourful parasols with the sea stretching across the horizon, while the smaller framed composition portrays two young children in a sunlit rural landscape. Executed with expressive palette knife and brushwork, both paintings display a fresh, spontaneous handling of paint, harmonious pastel tones and a strong sensitivity to light and atmosphere. The energetic application of colour and loose, painterly technique evoke the traditions of twentieth-century European Impressionism, making these complementary works equally
