Description

Designed in 1913 and cast in bronze in 1950, "Antigraceful" embodies Umberto Boccioni's Futurist rebellion against classical beauty. This reproduction of a fragmented head, with distorted planes and dislocated volumes, conveys the energy of the modern world--a face marked by movement, tension, and metamorphosis. True to the spirit of Italian Futurism, Boccioni transforms the bust into a field of forces, straddling abstraction and emotion. This iconic work, with its weathered surfaces and taut lines, remains a sculptural manifesto of modernity.
