Description

Created in 1907 and signed by Wilhelm Lehmbruck, the sculpture "Mother and Child" modestly expresses the universal bond between tenderness and maternal protection. This patinated bronze reproduction depicts a seated mother, her body leaning toward her child, whom she gently cradles. With its refined forms and balanced composition, the work conveys the quiet grace and emotional depth characteristic of Lehmbruck. Created before his Parisian period, this piece already foreshadows the artist's transition toward modernism and expressionism. The simplicity of the modeling, the subtle light on the bronze, and the fusion of the two bodies into a single form make this a work of great spirituality.
