Description

A significant baluster-shaped vase with an elongated ovoid body, rounded shoulders, and a slightly flared neck, produced by the Schneider glassworks under the brand name Le Verre Français. A multilayered glass piece featuring a milky white satin background, enlivened by pink and purplish filigree and powder inlays. The rotating design, etched with acid, features large stylized stars with long, tapered points, connected by thin, sinuous stems. The layering of the glass creates a rich contrast between the opalescent background with its pink undertones and the violet-brown design, which is particularly pronounced on the shoulder and neck. Long vertical drips complement the slender shape and accentuate its graphic character. Beneath the base, the vase bears the rare signature featuring a
