Description

Decorative Chinese horse in the Tang style, made of glazed ceramic, dating from the 20th century. This sculpture is inspired by the famous horses of the Tang Dynasty and the tradition of sancai ceramics, recognizable by their glaze effects in warm shades of amber, green, and cream. The horse features an amber-brown body, a green saddle, a light-colored mane, and a glazed base in cream tones. The dynamic pose, with one front leg raised, gives the piece a sense of movement and presence. The hand-painted glaze features natural nuances, firing marks, small irregularities, and signs of age that contribute to the object's decorative charm. A beautiful Asian-inspired decorative piece, ideal for a console table, bookshelf, desk, or Asian art collection. Details: Period: 20th century Origin:
