Description

Louis XV sewing table in rosewood and palisander marquetry, crafted in a Parisian workshop in the mid-19th century. This rare piece features a top richly decorated with rosewood arabesques and volutes, inlaid into a rosewood veneer arranged in a butterfly-wing pattern. The center is adorned with a brass plaque monogrammed "RD." The top opens via two chiseled brass hinges and is held in place by an original compass mechanism on the right side. It features a two-hook lock in perfect working order, accompanied by a carved key. A rectangular mirror surrounded by moldings is set into the drop-down panel. Inside this writing desk is a sliding rosewood drawer, accompanied by a compartment with three compartments. When pulled out, we discover an interior also finished in
