Description

Description: Heavy white metal, perhaps silver? This statue is one of the Marly horses by the sculptor Coustou (1677-1746). It was damaged during a bombing raid (1870; 1914, 18) as happened to many other objects. Having been left abandoned and unprotected, this statue has developed a patina typical of an antique. We therefore decided to bring it back to life in a museum-style setting, on a turned wooden base that allows it to be positioned in various poses and to rotate. Condition: Solid in its current state. Dimensions: Statue height: 42 cm, length: 45 cm. Total height: 51 cm.
