Description

A lovely mahogany hot-water bottle table in the Louis XVI style, resting on four tapered, fluted legs that end in bronze feet. The apron is embellished with quarter-round moldings and small brass fillets inlaid on the connecting blocks. It features two drawers and two leather-covered pull handles in brown. The top is finished with a white, veined marble slab, framed by an openwork brass border. A fine piece from the late 19th century. Please note: there are a few small stains on the leather of one of the pull handles as well as on the marble, due to normal use (see photos). Dimensions: height: 74 cm diameter: 65 cm handles width: 19.5 cm depth: 22 cm Please contact us for shipping costs
