185 EUR

Period : 20th century

Description

An elegant set of three small liqueur glasses, most likely made of unhallmarked silver or silver-plated with a vermeil interior. Each glass rests on a small, simple and elegant pedestal. The glasses feature rich floral decoration in relief set against a completely matt background, lending the set an interesting interplay of textures and light. The interior is gilded using a traditional technique employed in silversmithing to protect the metal from contact with liquids. The craftsmanship is evident, particularly in the joints and the characteristic marks of hand-crafted work. No hallmarks are present. However, the three glasses have been individually tested with a touchstone and reacted positively to the contrast liquid, indicating the presence of silver (see last photo). Condition: good overall condition. Normal
